All faculty are welcome to attend

Gender Equity Matters: Microaggressions Panel & Discussions

March 9 (Wednesday) 3:30-5 pm, in Gateway Room 132

Refreshments will be provided

Sponsored by a mentoring grant from the Office of Faculty Success

Panelists

- Joanne Woodard, Vice President for Institutional Equity and Diversity at UNT
- Mark Vosvick, Assoc. Professor of Counseling Psychology, researcher and leader in UNT’s LGBT Studies Program, director of UNT’s Center for Psychosocial Health Research.
- Leslie Roberts, Alternative Dispute Resolution Coordinator, Senior Lecturer at UNT (teaches courses in mediation and negotiation), lawyer for 20 years.
- Moderator is Jannon Fuchs, Professor of Biological Sciences; Co-Chair of the Faculty Senate Committee on the Status of Women.

The topic is Microaggressions (Subtle Forms of Discrimination): How to recognize them, how to avoid perpetrating them, and how to respond. Awareness of microaggressions is a necessary step toward achieving equity, diversity, and inclusiveness, to maximize everyone’s strengths. The first part of the session will be panelist presentations and discussions with attendees. In the second part, we will break into smaller mentoring groups to share advice on specific situations. Your presence at this inaugural seminar will help kick-start a series of presentations on Gender Equity Matters of particular interest to faculty. See you there!!
